THE BREAD FACTORY
LONDON

Specialist craft bakery serving the top chefs for over 30 years.

In the 1990s, our founder Gail Mejia brought together some of the best bakers in London to bake proper bread for the city's top chefs and restaurants. That was the start of The Bread Factory — a name chosen with irony, because everything we made was (and still is) handmade with care, using traditional methods and the best ingredients we could find.

Since then, we've grown from a small team into one of the UK's leading artisan bakeries, serving chefs, hotels, caterers, and national accounts across the country — people who care as much about quality as we do.

We continue to bake the breads that define our craft, while developing new ones to meet the needs of today's kitchens. Our journey began with deliveries to London's top restaurants — but since opening our second bakery in Manchester in 2016, we've proudly served the North West too, including Manchester, Leeds, Liverpool and beyond.

We work with trusted millers and farmers, ask tougher questions about flour and flavour, and constantly evolve how we bake to meet the highest standards. We don't just make bread. We partner with people who expect better — and rely on us to deliver it.

Because good bread should do more than fill a plate. It should tell a story — of quality, craft, and care.

The Way We Bake

The way bread is made today is a problem. Modern farming practices have left the soil tired and depleted, while a focus on mass production over quality means much of the bread we eat isn't what it should be. But we believe in something better – bread that nourishes the people who eat it, and the land it comes from. Bread that's full of flavour, and part of a food system built to last.

That belief is at the heart of The Way We Bake – our ethos and strategy that shapes every decision we make. It means using traditional methods not out of nostalgia, but because they work – and combining them with innovation when and where it matters. It means working with partners who prioritise soil health, biodiversity, and better farming practices. In the last two years, we've started incorporating regeneratively farmed and diverse grains into our loaves – a step towards a more resilient food system.

Baking this way is not just about what we make – it's about how we think. It's a commitment to evolve, to improve, and to question. To build a system that supports the land, the growers, and the people we feed.

Our main bakery is not free from the following allergens: nuts, sesame seeds, gluten, milk, mustard, eggs and soya. However, we do have a gluten free bakery that is a separate unit and free from gluten. This specialist gluten free range can be found at the back of this brochure. Our specifications, full ingredient declarations and nutritional information are all available upon request.

Sourdoughs

We aim for full fermentation by feeding our starter regularly and keeping it at just the right temperature. It's a slow process, but worth it. The result? Bread that's easier to digest, with better nutrients, lower gluten content, and a longer shelf life. No tricks. Just good bread, made with patience, purpose and proper fermentation..
